

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A bottle opener secured to the underside of a horizontal surface comprising a triangular shaped opener having an edge formed along the diagonal leg of the opener. A plurality of mounting holes are formed in the base of the opener so that fasteners can secure the opener to the underside of a horizontal surface, enabling a person to remove a bottle cap while positioned adjacent to the surface.